Dutch Quarter

Beautiful arts and craft stores can be found there

Nearby at “Bassinplatz” a weekly market with fresh local products (Mo - Sat)

The Dutch Quarter, also known colloquially as the “Holländerviertel” is a district in the center of Potsdam that was built between 1733 and 1742 as part of the second expansion of the city under the direction of the Dutch master builder Jan Bouman from Amsterdam.

The quarter consists of 134 brick houses, which are divided into four squares by Mittelstrasse and Benkertstrasse.

Besides classic sides: The “Rechenzentrum”

This glass mosaic by Fritz Eisel (1972) is representative of an artistic genre in Potsdam and the GDR. The artist Eisel describes his work as an examination “of electronic data processing between Einstein’s relativity formula $E=mc^2$ and Marx’s law of the economy of time.” It’s part of the “Rechenzentrum” - a building used for artistic, sociocultural and creative production and encounters since 2015. An open free exhibition on the ambivalent reconstruction of the “Garnisonkirche” can be found here. It’s just a 9 minute walk from Hotel Mercure, located at the corner of Breite Straße / Dortustraße, 14467 Potsdam. Find out more at <https://rz-potsdam.de/>

Cafés

1 Theos Island café

Located at the "Freundschaftsinsel"

On the large terrace of the Inselcafé you can directly sit on the „Alte Fahrt“. The menu offers dishes made from regional and seasonal ingredients: home-smoked pastrami sandwiches, fish, meat and vegetable dishes, salads, pizzas from the pizza oven, pasta and home-baked cakes and waffles. Vegan dishes can also be found on the menu. A beautiful 10 min. walk away from your residence hotel Mercure.
